SENATORS ACCUSE ACHESON OF "INSULTING" MacARTHUR

Senate Approves Jobless Pay Bill; Army Will Drop Its Point System

Full Employment Measure Advances; Senate Passes Bill To End Daylight Saving Time Sept. 30

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Senate passed the first big reconversion bill today—a measure for financial help to the unemployed. Legislators got assurances straight from Gen. George C. Marshall that the army will drop its discharge point system this winter and then let out two-year veterans.

Those were the high spots of the congressional day. Congress applauded Marshall and sent back to work. With these results:

1. The jobless pay measure cleared the Senate by a voice vote. It omits the $25 a week maximum President Truman wanted. But it keeps a provision to string out payments to the unemployed for twenty-six weeks.
2. The Senate whisked to the White House a bill to end day-light saving time at 2 a. m. Sept. 30.
3. The House passed a bill to give states title to a lot of wet but navigable lands—covered by tides or navigable water.
4. The Senate Banking committee passed a "full employment" bill.
5. Tax cut proposals passed.
6. Sens. Wherry (R-Neb.) and Chandler (D-Ky.) held up Senate confirmation of the appointment of Gen. C. Acheson as undersecretary of state. They said he had "insulted" and "blighted the name" of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.
7. New proposals for income tax cuts passed in the House.
8. It's up to the House now to act on pay for the jobless.
9. As the bill left the Senate, it could:

Give states enough federal money to pay the unemployed for twenty-six weeks at present varying rates. States now pay for shorter periods. Their jobless will get the money even if their governors don't accept the idea.

Grant eligibility for jobless pay to 400,000 maritime workers and 500,000 federal employees—such as those in navy yards and arsenals. Provide $200 apiece to get stranded war workers home.

Put the United States Employment Service back under state control, as before the war. The president wanted to keep it under federal management for a while.

Marshall told an informal session of senators and House members: The army will reduce its discharge point score from eighty to seventy.

October 1, to sixty by November 1. Then any GI with two years' service can say: "I want out." And he can get out.

Furthermore, points for officers' WACS will be lowered by November 1.

Long-Range Proposition
Full employment, also on the president's reconversion list, is the next major item on the Senate agenda. It's heading into a tough tap, probably Tuesday. The Banking committee approved it today.

It's a long-range proposition. The government would: Size up the job outlook every year. Recommend to industry steps to provide enough jobs to go around. If that failed, step in with "investment and expenditure" on such things as dams, buildings, harbor improvements.

On taxes, House Republican Leader Martin (Mass.) urged a twenty percent slash in levies on the 1946 incomes of individuals and busi-

Assistant Navy Secretary Hails "Proximity Fuse"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of the navy, today ranked the "radio proximity fuse" as second only to the atomic bomb among the greatest scientific developments of the war.

The fuse, which explodes a projectile as soon as it comes close enough to a target to inflict damage, is an extremely rugged five-foot tube which fits into the nose of a projectile. A vacuum tube sends out electromagnetic waves at the speed of light. These are reflected by any target which gives a radio reflection, such as metal objects, water or earth.

Hensel described the fuse at a news conference in which he said the navy invested some $800,000,000 in developing and producing. Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of army service forces, made the first disclosure of the fuse in an address at Baltimore last Tuesday.

At the end of the war halted production, radio tubes used in the fuse were being produced at the rate of 400,000 daily. Approximately 80,000 people were employed in production of the fuse, Hensel said.

Target Trips Switch
If a projectile equipped with the fuse passes within seventy feet of an airplane, reflected impulses act on the fuse circuit to trip a switch, which causes an electrical detonator to set off the main explosive charge.

The threat of the airplane to the surface ship stimulated the search for a practical proximity fuse, Hensel said. The research was carried out by a section of the National Defense Research Committee headed by Dr. Merle A. Tuve, Chevy Chase, Md.

Development of the fuse required production of miniature electronic parts so rugged they could withstand the shock of being fired from a gun with a force 20,000 times that of gravity. The components had to be so small that a complete unit could be installed in the nose of a projectile.

The first acceptable fuses came from production lines in September, 1942, and the first Japanese plane was shot down by such a projectile in January 5, 1943.

Taylor Submits His Resignation As Chief of WLB

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Chairman George W. Taylor, of the War Labor Board, turned in his resignation today and Labor Secretary Schweclbach acted swiftly to head off further departures by granting the WLB complete autonomy.

Taylor submitted the resignation to President Truman, and they agreed to make it effective October 15, it was learned today. This would give the board and Schweclbach an opportunity to get started under the new administrative arrangement resulting from WLB transfer to the Labor department.

Schweclbach, depending on the board and a rejuvenated United States Conciliation Service to help him meet the threat of widespread labor troubles in the conversion to peacetime production, set forth a declaration of policy which gives the board the same degree of independence of action it had as a war agency.

He put his views in writing, at the request of the board members, for consideration at an emergency session of the WLB late today.

The president had given Schweclbach authority to formulate policies for the board, a feature which some members frankly did not care for.

Meanwhile, a broad new legislative plan for voluntary settlement of worker disputes was offered in Congress by four senators.

The legislation would center all efforts toward settlement in the Department of Labor under a three-part program:

1. Action by a division of mediation and conciliation within the department. It would be composed of highly-paid experts from present agencies.
2. Creation of a United States Board of Arbitration, an independent agency. It would act only when both parties agreed to arbitration but once they agreed its decisions could become judgments in federal courts.
3. Presidentially-appointed boards of inquiry. These could step in even when strikes were under way to determine facts of public interest.

Senators sponsoring the measure are Hayden (D-Ariz.), Tamm (D-Del.), and Thomas (D-Utah) and McMahon (D-Conn.).

U. S. Army Takes Control of Japs' Economic Destiny

Gen. MacArthur Moves To See that Fallen Nation Feeds Itself

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 21 (AP)—The United States Army took control of Japan's economic destiny today, determined to see that the fallen nation feeds itself and develops an appetite for democracy.

The announced immediate objectives of Gen. MacArthur's economic drive were to check inflation and oversee a fair food distribution to head off hunger riots and revolt against United States rule in the tough winter ahead.

A Washington report said a new policy directive recently had been sent MacArthur. It called for eliminating nearly all heavy industry, rigid control of the Bank of Japan, enactment of legislation for free speech and assembly and removal of all ultra-nationalists from positions of power—public or private.

Axis Assets Are Frozen
(The same dispatch said a special and high-ranking emissary may soon be sent to confer with MacArthur, a step designed to eliminate apparent divergencies between the State department's tough peace policy and what the Allied command actually is doing in Japan.)

In another phase of economic control, the Japanese finance ministry, at MacArthur's order, froze all assets of Axis nations in Japan. Domei agency reported.

The Japanese war ministry meanwhile notified MacArthur that three-fourths of its home army of more than 2,000,000 men had been disbanded and the rest were being demobilized at the rate of 50,000 a day.

At this pace, the once-powerful home army will pass out of existence the first week of October, at least a week ahead of MacArthur's mid-month deadline.

The United States Eighth Army agency said that the maximum occupation force would reach 400,000 by the end of the year before its contemplated cut to 200,000 about six months hence.

17 Warships Leave Tokyo
Seventeen ships of the United States Third fleet, with the occupation smooth and the empire largely demilitarized, sailed from Tokyo bay for home with several thousand navy men eligible for discharge.

Four more suspected war criminals were rounded up. With thirty-two top suspects in Yokohama prison, Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger said that War Dictator Hideki Tojo soon would be moved from the hospital "to the local calaboose to join the rest of his Pearl Harbor gang."

Japan's new economic program was announced by Col. Raymond C. Kramer, of MacArthur's economic and scientific section.

"We are going to give the man in the street a break which will make him like democracy," Kramer declared, pointing out that big industries got off with a twenty percent tax cut supporting a war which cost individuals as much as eighty per cent of their income.

He told of bodies of internees piled like jammed logs, guards who spoke only the "language of blows," guards who shot prisoners walking instead of running at their work, cannibalism, starvation, filth and pestilence.

"My Conscience Is Clear," Last Jap Envoy to U. S. Says

By MORRIS LANDSBERG

TOKYO, Sept. 20 (AP)—Tokyo's last ambassador to Washington declared today military "fire eaters" struck Pearl Harbor without his knowledge and he was unaware the bombs already had fallen when he delivered Japan's note to Secretary of State Hull on that fateful Sunday.

"When I returned to the embassy I was informed of developments by staff members who got it from the American radio," Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura said in an interview.

"I was very embarrassed and worried, but it was beyond my power to prevent it. War is deplorable but my conscience, may I say, is clear."

The man who presented Japan's reply to the American note for continued peace in the Orient on that December 7, 1941, asserted he had urged his nation's leaders to be cautious and had worked to avoid war.

"Hull angrily told Nomura and Japanese special envoy, Saburo Kurusu that morning: 'In all my fifty years of public service I have never seen a document that was more crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions on a scale so huge that I never imagined until today that any government on this huge planet was capable of uttering them.'"

"I didn't play any double play in dealing with Secretary Hull," said the gray-haired Nomura in an exclusive interview at his bomb-refuge home near Enzan, fifty miles southwest of Tokyo.

"The war was against my wishes; I knew America's great industrial capacity and ability to produce, but it was decided in Tokyo."

The 67-year-old retired admiral, who often had served his country in the United States and speaks English, joined the ranks of prominent Japanese who, since the occupation, have blamed militarists for the country's downfall and absolved Emperor Hirohito from all guilt.

"Since this was not done, the final result must have been desired," the party leadership had issued orders for "spontaneous" anti-Jewish demonstrations, using the killing of a German diplomat in Paris by a Jew as a pretext.

Party members who committed the excesses were carrying out "the recognized will of the leadership," Schneider wrote. He added: "The responsibility for command lies with those who command, not with those who carry it out."

Gen. Chennault Startles Natives of Louisiana

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 20 (AP)—The Miami Daily News told today how Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, of the famed "Flying Tigers," startled the natives of Louisiana on a recent aerial deer hunting trip.

"After he bagged a deer, he would load the dead animal into the plane in such a fashion that it appeared the deer was the pilot," the story said. "Then he would fly low along the railroad tracks and above small towns and delightedly watch the incredulity of persons on the ground."

Secret Records Bare Nazi Guilt In '38 Massacre

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BERLIN, Sept. 20 (AP)—Long-hidden records of the Nazi party's own highest secret tribunal flatly assert that the party's top leaders were responsible for the bloody program of 1938.

The official documents recovered here disclosed, after seven years, the black truth of the massacre of Jews.

Reporting to Reichsmarschal Hermann Goering after the court investigated the deaths of 106 Jews wantonly slain in a November night of murder, rape, arson and pillage, Judge Ludwig Schneider, who presided over most of the program hearings, wrote:

"Public opinion to the last man knows that political actions like that of November 9 are organized and carried out by the party, whether this is admitted or not."

He said Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels told a party leader who telephoned him at 2 a. m. November 10 about the killing of a Polish Jew that there was "no cause for excitement over the death of one dead Jew" since "in the next few days there would be thousands."

"At this time, most of the deaths could still have been prevented by an additional directive," Schneider said.

"Since this was not done, the final result must have been desired," the party leadership had issued orders for "spontaneous" anti-Jewish demonstrations, using the killing of a German diplomat in Paris by a Jew as a pretext.

Party members who committed the excesses were carrying out "the recognized will of the leadership," Schneider wrote. He added: "The responsibility for command lies with those who command, not with those who carry it out."

Wherry, Chandler Act as a Result Of Disagreement Over Jap Policy

Action on Acheson's Nomination Is Delayed; Japan Will Lose Ultra-Nationalist Leaders

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—In a hot Senate debate two senators tonight delayed action on Dean Acheson's nomination to be undersecretary of state, on the ground that he had "insulted" Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Sens. Wherry (R-Neb.) and Chandler (D-Ky.) acted as the result of disagreement between MacArthur and the State department over occupation policies in Japan.

Recently MacArthur forecast that the occupation forces could be cut down to 200,000 men in six months. Acheson shot back with a statement that occupation policy was being made in Washington, not in the field.

Wherry told the Senate that Acheson, at present acting secretary of state, had "blighted the name" of MacArthur. Chandler said the general had been "insulted."

In a follow-up to Acheson's statement, it was learned today that MacArthur is being ordered to purge Japan of its ultra-nationalist leaders in both public and private positions of power.

During the Senate debate, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) leaped to the defense of Acheson. He said it was "ridiculous" to say that the acting secretary had "blackened the name" of Gen. MacArthur.

Recess until Monday
But Wherry insisted that action on the nomination go over until next week. Chandler backed him up.

Barkley finally moved to recess the Senate until Monday, without considering a long list of presidential appointments.

Later Barkley told reporters he thought there would be no difficulty in obtaining approval of the nomination Monday.

Supporters of a "hard peace" for Japan generally defended Acheson's statement as a reiteration of American intentions to demonstrate to the Japanese that they lost the war.

The general purpose of the instructions is to carry out the industrial disarmament program laid down in the Potsdam communique which defined the terms of unconditional surrender for Japan.

Other developments on the Japanese occupation included: 1. Top Washington officials were disclosed to be considering sending a special emissary to Tokyo to talk things over with Gen. MacArthur.

2. Acting Secretary of State Acheson announced the appointment of John Carter Vincent, 46-year-old expert on Korea and particularly on China, to be director of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs. He is expected to promote a tougher policy for controlling Japan.

MacArthur Has 'No Comment'
3. From Tokyo came word that MacArthur personally had "no comment" on Acheson's criticism of the general's estimate that it would require only 200,000 men to occupy Japan six months from now. Officers on MacArthur's staff, however, said that the occupation forces would reach a peak of 400,000 by the end of this year before the slash to 200,000 occurs. At present 150,000 American soldiers are in Japan.

4. The Acheson criticism, voiced at a news conference yesterday, brought a sharp response from former Gov. Alfred Landon, of Kansas, one-time Republican presidential nominee. Landon contended that (Continued on Page 13, Col. 9)

Yanks May Marry German Frauleins After Oct. 1 if Commanders Approve

By EDWARD D. BALL

BERLIN, Sept. 20 (AP)—Effective October 1, Allied occupation troops including Americans, may marry Germans and be billeted in German homes if their commanders-in-chief approve, the Allied Control Council announced today.

Whether Americans may marry frauleins or live in German homes will be up to Gen. Eisenhower. He left for Frankfurt after the meeting and it was not known immediately whether he would put a blanket rule on marriages, or whether he would decide upon each individual case.

The council relaxed the non-fraternization ban to permit Allied troops to visit in German homes and have normal social relations with Germans after October 1. Only the marriage and billeting restrictions were left in force, subject to the zone commanders' discretion.

Originally, western Allied soldiers were forbidden to associate with Germans or even to talk with them except on business. Relaxation of the rigid policy affects only British, American and French troops, since the Russians never imposed a ban such as that laid down by supreme Allied headquarters at the start of the invasion of Germany.

The council's statement: "Any separate zonal instructions which may have been issued relative to fraternization with the German people will be abolished, effective October 1, 1945, except that the billeting of troops with German families and the marriage of personnel of occupying forces to Germans will be permitted only with the specific approval of the responsible zone commanders."

"The council agreed to this plan for the interest of uniform treatment of Germany and directed the coordinating committee to issue appropriate instructions in its name to the zone commanders."

Neighbor Pictures Bride as Happy On Day of Death

By JOANNE EDSON
COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 20 (AP)—A happy, carefree bride on the day of her death was pictured today by a neighbor of Mary Lee Williams, who was murdered by poison and suffocation in a small room in a rooming house in Columbia, S. C., Sept. 19, 1945.

Mrs. J. H. Ferguson, wife of an army doctor who was living in an apartment adjoining the rooming house, told of seeing Mary Lee Williams on the day of her death.

The state accuses Ferguson of giving Mary Lee an overdose of sodium arsenite and then burying her in a foxhole grave.

"She was as happy and carefree as she always was in the time I had known her," Mrs. Ferguson said of Mary Lee's demeanor during her visit of several weeks with Ferguson on the eve of his scheduled transfer overseas.

The pretty, auburn-haired Florida school teacher seemed "normal and natural that day," Mrs. Ferguson told the court.

Doctors Are Called to Stand
Pharmacologists and doctors were called to the stand by the prosecution as it attempted to show that Mary Lee could not involuntarily have taken an overdose of sodium arsenite in small quantities.

In statements to officers at the time her body was unearthed from its foxhole grave last February 14, Ferguson said he and Mary Lee had taken a few drinks at their apartment, and that she had taken several sodium arsenite capsules at various times, "about ten" in all.

Uncertainty as to the cause of death developed today as Capt. A. L. Vase, army doctor, testified that he could "not ascribe the cause of death."

Dr. R. P. Walton, however, said there was "evidence of enough sodium arsenite" in Mary Lee's body "to cause death."

Walton, professor of pharmacology at the South Carolina State Medical college, was asked:

"In your own method of calculation what would you say was the total amount of barbiturate in the girl's body?"

"From twenty to thirty grains," Walton replied.

"That would be from thirteen to twenty capsules," he added.

Effects of Dosages Are Described
"Have you ever heard of automatism where you take quantities of tablets and wake up the next day and swear you never took but two?" Defense Attorney Edgar A. Brown asked.

Walton nodded his head affirmatively, and then when asked to describe the effects on a woman of taking spaced dosages of sodium arsenite, said:

"The average person would be noticeably sleepy after taking two of the capsules. In a deep sleep after two more, and unable to reach for more capsules herself, although able to swallow them."

"Then she would be in a deep anesthesia."

The state accuses Ferguson of giving Mary Lee an overdose of pain-relieving sodium arsenite, a barbiturate, at their apartment here, of carrying her blanket-wrapped body ten miles in his car to a nearby burial in an abandoned maneuver area at the fort.

U. S. War Casualties Stand at 1,071,266

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—American war casualties, mounting slowly as late counts come in, stood at 1,071,266 today. This was an increase of 536 within a week.

Here are the army casualties announced today and those a week ago:

Killed 206,369 and 205,045; wounded 571,698 and 571,006; missing 24,131 and 25,082; prisoners 120,988 and 120,567.

The navy comparative figures: Killed 84,068 and 83,809; wounded 80,236 and 79,732; missing 11,197 and 11,262; prisoners 3,379 and 3,606.

Peace Organization Ministers Tackle Will Function Soon Balkan Problems

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Edward R. Stettinius, United States delegate to the United Nations Preparatory Commission, said tonight "we are working night and day" to have the full United Nations organization functioning by the new year.

If this goal is met, the former secretary of state said in a radio address to the United States, "and if the ratifications are completed in time, we shall begin 1946—the first year of peace—with the whole organization at work upon the task of making that peace secure."

"Last week I proposed as a goal that the full preparatory commission of the United Nations and the first general assembly should meet in London before Christmas," Stettinius said. "Our proposal meant considerably speeding up the preparatory work."

"The war is over, but we have hardly begun upon the great and urgent problems of economic reconstruction which the war has left behind. We cannot successfully meet this challenge unless we deal with it in the same way as we have fought and won the war—not by regional blocs and rivalries and separate treaties, but together as united nations."

Rev. Charles G. Long Waits Incommunicado For End of the World

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 20 (AP)—The Rev. Charles G. Long waited incommunicado today for the end of the world.

The leader of a fifty-member group calling itself the "Remnant of the Church of God" had predicted through a spokesman son, Richard, that the world may be disintegrated tomorrow in a burst of split atoms. The time may be 5:33 p. m. Pacific War Time, or 7:33 a. m. Pacific War Time (if the last coming is according to Jerusalem time) barring a possible delay until September 29 or even next fall, the leaders said.

A telephone call to the 72-year-old Long's home today went thus: "What are Mr. Long's plans for tomorrow?"

Unidentified woman's voice: "No plans whatsoever."

"Will there be a gathering of his followers at his home?"

"None whatsoever."

A reporter and photographer who went to the house and knocked on the door got no response.

Meanwhile, fifteen Pasadena ministers issued a joint statement asserting forecasts of the world's end are "misleading and lacking in harmony of Scriptural truth."

G. Allan Hancock, Oil Millionaire, Is Divorced

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20 (AP)—G. Allan Hancock, Hollywood oil millionaire and philanthropist, was divorced today by Mrs. Helen Leaf Hancock, whom he married in the Canal Zone six years ago. She received a property settlement of approximately $1,000,000.

Mrs. Hancock testified the wealthy industrialist cared nothing for home life.

"He said anyone as great as he was should not be bothered with a home at any time," she asserted.

WPB Lifts More Controls

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Hotels, restaurants, linen rental services and similar establishments now may purchase fabric for uniforms, table covers and napkins without obtaining priorities, WPB announced today.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The War Production Board revoked today its order (L-120) providing for simplification and standardization of paper products. This means that paper products such as bags now may be made in any weight, size or color.

Universal Blood Type Experiment Is Successful

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 20 (AP)—Army doctors who used convicts as volunteer guinea pigs reported "highly successful" results today at the conclusion of tests to develop a universal blood type suitable for all transfusions.

One hundred thirty-four inmates, some of them life termers, answered the call for volunteers, said Maj. L. H. Tisdall, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was in charge. Forty-nine were chosen for the thirty-five-day tests.

Each received transfusions of about a pint of blood. The first day they lay on cots in the prison hospital while the doctors observed them closely. Then they resumed their prison duties, returning daily for a week for checkups.

Tisdall said none suffered any "lasting ill effects." The knowledge gained will be shared with civilians.

On battlefields, he explained, a need was found for a universal type of whole blood.

"Our job has been to determine how group O donor blood could be used universally, how we could adapt other types (A, B and AB) to this group and to establish the necessary safeguards," said Tisdall. "Our studies should make the use of universal O even safer than it is."

He said the convicts' response to his plea for help was "just short of marvelous."

"I would explain what we were attempting to do," he related, "and most of the prisoners would say, 'I don't know what you're talking about, but I'll do whatever you want me to.'"

250 Servicemen Enroll At University of Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 20 (AP)—Two hundred and fifty servicemen have registered at the University of Maryland since the first peacetime enrollment in four years started two days ago, officials announced today.

Freshmen registration for the two days was expected to reach 1,000, and upperclass registration tomorrow and Saturday was expected to total another 1,000, officials said.

Concerning primarily a matter of procedure, since main territorial and separation issues were defined in the armistice.

The fact that the Big Five were discussing the Romanian peace pact indicated the ministers were tackling the thorny problems of the Balkans, including treaties with Bulgaria and Hungary.

Chinese Groups Reach Agreement, Newspaper Says

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
CHUNGKING, Sept. 20 (AP)—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) and the Chinese Communists have reached an agreement to co-operate "on the basis of equal position" under Chiang for the reconstruction of China, the authoritative newspaper Ta Kung Pao declared today.

The newspaper published what it described as the contents of the agreement between the two powerful groups, long at odds.

A principal point, it said, calls for an all-party conference to plan for participation "by all parties and groups" in the Chinese government.

There has been no official announcement of any agreement between representatives of Chiang's Central government and the Communists, who for weeks have been holding conferences aimed at eliminating any threat of civil war.

These were the principal points of the agreement, as published by Ta Kung Pao:

Both parties have agreed that China is entering a period of peace and national reconstruction and that civil war must not take place.

Believing that an "independent, free and happy new China should be built on a foundation of unity and democracy," all parties and groups in China will carry on "enduring co-operation under the leadership of President Chiang and on the basis of the equal position of the Kuomintang and the Chinese Communist party."

Anti-Poll Tax Bill To Get Favorable Report

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Sen. Hatch (D-NM) said today his Judiciary subcommittee will report the anti-poll tax bill favorably, by 3 to 2 vote, to the full Judiciary committee at its Monday meeting.

Hatch told a reporter that Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), Langer (R-ND) and Kilgore (D-WVa.) favor the bill, but that he and Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) oppose it because they believe it unconstitutional.

The bill would abolish by federal law the payment of poll taxes in seven southern states which still impose the levy as a prerequisite to voting. The states: Alabama, Mississippi, Virginia, Arkansas, Texas, South Carolina and Tennessee.

The House approved the bill last spring, but it has been many times defeated by filibuster tactics of southern Senators.

The seventy-four major facilities affected and to be made surplus before the end of the year include Middle River, Md., (acreage not given).

Jones Says RFC Imposed B. and O. Loan Conditions

By RENE J. CAPPON
BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (AP)—Jesse Jones, former head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, testified in federal court today that the conditions on which the agency agreed to renew the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's $84,000,000 loan were "imposed by the RFC" and not "stimulated" by railroad officials.

He made the statement in response to a question by one of the three judges sitting on a special court to rule on the Baltimore and Ohio's $800,000,000 debt adjustment plan. The RFC has asserted to this recapitalization as the condition of renewing its loan.

Both Jones and Charles B. Henderson, present RFC chairman who followed the former commerce secretary to the witness stand, said they were satisfied that the road had no other means of meeting its matured debt than through the proposed refinancing operation.

fed" into refusing the 1944 renewal by railroad officials working toward an adjustment plan. He also contradicted previous testimony by Cassius M. Clay, former B. and O. solicitor, who claimed there had been a "gentlemen's agreement" between Jones and railroad officials that the loan would be renewed in 1944.

Terming Clay's testimony on that point "entirely incorrect," Jones said, "there was no gentlemen's agreement nor could there have been any under the law."

Jones said the RFC would not have renewed the loan except on condition of a general financial adjustment.

Randolph Phillips, New York, B. and O. bondholder objecting to the plan, asked for the reason and Jones replied that the decision "was in the interest of the RFC."

Both Jones and Charles B. Henderson, present RFC chairman who followed the former commerce secretary to the witness stand, said they were satisfied that the road had no other means of meeting its matured debt than through the proposed refinancing operation.

Allies Found Shanghai Stripped To the Bone by Japanese Looters

By KURT STEINER
CHUNGKING, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Japanese did an excellent job of clearing Shanghai of everything remotely useful to their war effort, but the final touch came after Japan gave up.

From August 15 to the time American and Chinese forces arrived in Shanghai, the Japanese sold most of their military supplies to Chinese at a fraction of the cost of replacement.

Japanese trucks roamed the city around the clock, clearing warehouse after of everything conceivable.

able. Sugar, rice, shovels, cotton cloth, paper, soap, office equipment, furniture, automobiles, bicycles and thousands of other categories of goods were disposed of before Allied troops arrived.

Except for the looting of a number of Allied-owned homes, there were no "incidents" in the last days of Japanese occupation.

When Allied nationals were interned, their residences and offices were handed over to Japanese civilians. When the surrender came, the Japanese consulate instructed the squatters to remain on the premises until the rightful owners returned. The squatters, fearing Chinese crowds—which behaved extremely well—ignored the order and moved into "Little Tokyo," the prewar Japanese quarter in the northern part of Shanghai. Some 300,000 Japanese now are concentrated there.

Long before the surrender, looters had ransacked Allied-owned residences which had not been allotted to Japanese. Everything was removed, including beams, flooring, windows, tiles and bricks. The looting often occurred near internecine camps from which Japanese guards could have intervened.

Japanese troops and civilians looted Shanghai from the beginning. Factories owned by Allied national were looted completely, down to the last wheel-shaft. Street lights were carried off, as were bronze tablets, a cenotaph commemorating war dead—including the Japanese World War I dead—monuments and tablets from graves.

Metal street markers were replaced with wooden ones. Tramway tracks were removed in some streets in the central district. More than 100 metal bus bodies were scrapped. Steam-heating equipments, boilers, filling station tanks and pumps, all were removed to bolster the Japanese scrap reserves.

Thus did Japan try to convince China's masses it wanted to "free" China from the Allied "yoke."

Among other ways of systematic looting, the Japanese military and diplomatic leaders continually exacted tribute from Shanghai's utility concerns and race clubs. The former increased consumer "deposits" almost monthly, and the race club operators, with an $80,000,000 week-end turnover, instituted midweek race meetings in midsummer to fill the Japanese coffers.

Where Switching Will Avail Little

SUPPORT given by the House Expenditures committee at Washington to President Truman's request for power to streamline the federal government was expected. The committee approved a bill authorizing the president to switch things around in more than 100 federal agencies. Only four units of the government would be left completely untouched, which is in sharp contrast to the Roosevelt clutching as twenty-one agencies were exempted when his reorganization plan of 1939 was adopted.

Let it be hoped that President Truman will exercise the authority under this measure to some advantage to government functioning and to the taxpayers. Mere switching of an agency from one spot to another will avail little. Here is where reform is badly needed, where duplicated and overlapping agencies should be straightened out, where useless agencies should be promptly abolished, where hundreds of thousands of pay-rollers should be released.

We have been reading much about the broad powers given Secretary Schweilenbach to deal with labor problems with assertions that the conflicting agencies erected to govern past blunders and failures would be unified and placed under him. Yet when the president formally turned over to the labor secretary the War Labor Board, the War Manpower Commission, and the United States Employment Service, there was a stipulation that War Labor Board decisions are to be final and not subject to Schweilenbach's review. Thus he is told to go ahead with chains on.

As for the employment agency, that has run into a snag in Congress with a vote by the Senate to turn it back under state management as it was before the war and where it logically belongs.

The partisan angle was not overlooked in the preparation of the reorganization measure. President Truman had asked for sweeping authority without any restrictions, but a time limit was imposed. This was done, it was explained, for two reasons: one that the termination of the 1946 is a fiscal year end, the other that it meant that any reorganization plan could not be placed before Congress during presidential campaign months as it would become a campaign issue. Apparently the majority is fearful of anything like that.

Hanging Deserved By Traitor Joyce

ALLIED PEOPLES will feel a sense of justice that William Joyce, the scar-faced little "Lord Haw Haw," has been condemned to death as a traitor. Surely if anyone ever deserved that name and fate, it is he, for the aid and comfort he gave to Britain's enemy during the war. Joyce, once a propagandist for Hitler, once a black-shirted fascist, once a member of the British Broadcasting Corporation, he began broadcasting over the Hamburg wireless in 1939. Britons were startled to hear his admission, in an unmistakably British accent, that to some he might "seem a traitor."

Then began a long series of daily broadcasts in which "Lord Haw Haw" as he was dubbed by a London newspaper writer, sought to spread disunity and fear, to assure the British that they could not win. By the spring of 1940 it was estimated that half the radios in the kingdom were tuned to Joyce's broadcasts. They were ridiculed but British authorities expressed concern at their probable effect on morale.

There is a chance that the death penalty may not stick as an appeal has been taken on Joyce's contention that he is an American citizen, born thirty-nine years ago in Brooklyn, N. Y., on which ground defense solicitors won dismissal of two other counts against him. Justice Sir Frederick Tucker, the trial judge, ruled that Joyce owed allegiance to the British crown when he went to Germany "wrapped up in the Union Jack" under the protection of a British passport obtained by posing as a British subject just before the war broke out.

Suppose the appeal is sustained and Joyce is acquitted, he might possibly go scot free, and in view of the constitutional prescription in America that he couldn't be tried here and so twice placed in jeopardy of his life that would be too much. And while that double jeopardy might not be to extra-territorial trial, he might not be considered an enemy of this nation, but only of the British.

Labor Agitations Are Far-Reaching

THE RECONVERSION PROGRAM, so proudly hailed and so eagerly awaited, has stalled before it got started. The automobile industry was expected to be the cornerstone of peacetime prosperity. Offering the greatest possibilities for employment of skilled workers, and with the entire world waiting to buy their product, automobile manufacturers were among the first to start to retool for peace. They were vocal in demands that government shackles be removed.

But assembly lines had only begun to function when labor, moving under the banner of the CIO, shut down factories by strikes. In one plant in Detroit they quit work because the management was following a War Production Board order issued last April.

Most of our personal associations are very brief indeed. We must get our honey quickly, like the fleet little humming bird, snatching it here and there, but often returning to the same place for more! This small creature hovers about us like a halo and following us like a shadow, freshly drenched in the sunlight.

The remembered days of youth, with all their exciting adventures, especially those that concerned the country and nature, stay by us all as among the most important and certainly among the happiest of all the days of our lives. The beauty of their experiences is forever returning to put color and hope and promise into our days of Autumn.

agitators in Detroit have stagnated industry in many sections of the country.

Secretary of Labor Schweilenbach, an ardent New Dealer, recently said that "Labor now has the opportunity to solve its problems and to make certain the common good is not transgressed."

Evidently the Detroit labor agitators, who have taken the attitude "To hell with reconversion," were not listening.

War Tax Reductions Depend on Economy

IT WOULD BE SALUTARY if as much attention were given to the necessity of reducing federal government expenditures as is being given to a reduction of federal taxes. After sixteen months of study, the Committee on Postwar Tax Policy has recommended an ultimate over-all reduction of more than fifty per cent in these taxes. Immediate elimination of the three per cent normal tax on individual incomes is proposed by the group, headed by Roswell Magill, former under secretary of the treasury in a 278-page report submitted to Congress and the Treasury department.

That would reduce federal revenue by around two billions and free more than nine million present taxpayers from this levy on their small incomes. That ought to be possible if, as the committee proposes, the taxes can be reduced 40 between fifteen and twenty-two billions over a three-year transition period as compared to the wartime peak of forty-seven billions reached during the last fiscal year.

The committee anticipates a big paring down of the national budget from its present swollen war proportions. Reduction in that, of course, will naturally come, but, viewing the big debt load, the tax reduction prospects will necessarily depend upon a drastic reduction in government expenditures. There is seen how important it is to get these expenses cut down as briskly as possible. But we cannot anticipate such a welcome cut in federal taxes as is envisioned by this report until those expenses are reduced faster than they are being reduced at present.

Housing Situation Gets a Break

BECAUSE of the housing shortage occasioned by the war program, which has been growing more acutely serious day by day, there is much importance to be attached to the elimination of restrictions on home and building construction just announced in Washington. Nor does this point to gratifying relief for millions of home-seekers but it can set in motion a production that will mean jobs.

Some estimates have placed the backlog of demand for new construction as high as $75,000,000,000. Contemplated construction includes homes deferred during war years or planned to relieve acute housing shortages in many cities; commercial and industrial structures projected as part of postwar expansion plans; new hospitals, educational and religious institutions.

Residential building is expected to account for the largest portion of the total. Government agencies have aimed at a rate of 1,250,000 homes annually.

Price controls remain a factor affecting the entire building picture, however, both as to materials and completed structures, since most private estimates of anticipated construction totals have been based on the assumption of a "free market."

"The Green Pea," according to a garden item, is "sensitive." That must be right, for it has often been noticed how peas, when exposed on a knife, tremble and dive off to hide in the diner's lap.

Large emeralds were once believed capable of foretelling one's fortune. That's funny—we always thought of big emeralds as being themselves, a fortune.

REMEMBERED BEAUTY

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The more we train our sense of beauty, the more alert it is to every new form of beauty. And the longer we observe it, the more it reveals to us. As almost imperishable pictures. Pictures to be recalled from time to time, freshening and fragrantizing Memory itself.

A love of beauty is a precious inheritance, and to a lesser or greater degree it is the inheritance of us all. But it is like everything else that we inherit we must increase it through its development, and make it serve our happiness more and more. We carry around with us wherever we go a great gallery of remembered scenes. Never does a thing of beauty quite leave us. There is always something that we have unconsciously clung to, as though naturally akin to us, after having become thoroughly acquainted with a famous painting, for example, in many reproductions, we are given the opportunity of viewing the genuine original—and there we see all the matchless colors created, and somehow we scent the soul of the painter. This is what we carry away with us.

It is the remembered beauty in the faces and characters of those whom we have loved and lost that remains with us hovering about us like a halo and following us like a shadow, freshly drenched in the sunlight.

The remembered days of youth, with all their exciting adventures, especially those that concerned the country and nature, stay by us all as among the most important and certainly among the happiest of all the days of our lives. The beauty of their experiences is forever returning to put color and hope and promise into our days of Autumn.

Republicans in Caucus Decide Truman Is Much More Dangerous than Roosevelt

ARMY ACCEPTS PEARSON SUGGESTION

On Sept. 3, Drew Pearson urged the War department to furlough returned veterans instead of making them mark time in camps. On Sept. 18, the War department announced that soldiers returning from overseas will be given forty-five days temporary duty at home.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Chief topic of conversation at the recent closed-door caucus of House Republicans was President Harry Truman. Had he been there, he would have disliked some of the references to him, but he would have felt pleased to note how strong a man the Republicans think he is.

For a dozen years, Republican sessions featured vitriolic outbursts against the late President Roosevelt. For a time after Truman went to the White House, little was heard about him in the secret discussions. But now the Republicans have decided that they have just as dangerous an enemy in the White House as when FDR was there.

Representative Charley Halleck, of Rensselaer, Ind., summed it up this way near the close of the session:

"We've got to quite electing Truman. The way we're operating here, the only fight Truman will have in 1948 will be within his own party—the fight between the Democrats and the Communists."

"What's the use of staying," he remarked, "when I can read it all in Drew Pearson's column later?"

La Follette Sarcastic

Only once did the Republicans hear anything which made them wince a bit. This came from pro-Republican Charles La Follette, of Evanston, Ind., who spoke on the pending legislation to create a Fair Employment Practices committee. Because it was apparent that the Republicans are not bestirring themselves to put through this legislation, La Follette reminded them that their 1944 platform definitely calls for support for FEPC.

La Follette scolded them for failing to push their own program, and criticized without naming names, a number of fellow congressmen who last year told campaign audiences that Governor Dewey was advocating progressive measures merely as a vote-getting measure.

"It's about time we stopped crucifying our own candidates," said Indiana's La Follette. "If we are to be honest about this whole thing, why don't we select as our candidate someone in Congress whose vote has never deviated from the Republican policy? Let's put up such a man and let him run with this simple platform: 'I stand on the record of the Republican party in Congress.'"

Most of his colleagues either did not catch or did not like this sarcasm.

Quizzing German Officers

One of the smartest operators attached to the U. S. Strategic Bombing Survey, which studied bombing damage in Germany, was Sgt. Paul Baran, former Harvard instructor, and a refugee from Hitler. Baran, who has the man of a Palestine written all over his face, was given the job of interviewing one of the great leaders of the German army, Col. Gen. Franz Halder.

Up until Himmler eased him out in 1942, Halder ran the German army. However, he was forced to sit before Sgt. Baran for two long hours and answer rapid-fire questions. After the interview, Col. Gen. Halder, with considerable respect in his voice, said:

"May I ask my interviewer a question?"

Sergeant Baran nodded permission.

"and he has learned to appear modest and homey."

Among other crimes the GOP holds against Truman is the fact that he is not a college man—all his simplicity and his lack of polish merely mask a sharp political mind which, in its way, is just as dangerous to the GOP as was Roosevelt.

—If not more so.

Congress Thrives on Battle

"What Truman is going to do," one Mid-Western Republican said, "is to let this Congress have its way." Deduction was that this would be tough on GOP congressmen. They thrive on political battles.

The Republicans were told, for instance, that they will not get a chance to vote on abolishing the draft because the Democratic leadership will keep the issue from a vote until the pressure gets heavier. Then at the right psychological moment, it was predicted, the White House will abolish the draft by executive order, thereby hogging the credit.

Otherwise there was little done in the caucus. It was supposed to work up a legislative program, but little of constructive nature was said. Brassy-lipped John Taber, of Auburn, N. Y., ranking Republican on the House Appropriations committee, made his usual speech calling for economy in government. As usual, he was seconded by Harold Knutson, of Manhattan Beach, Minn., ranking Republican on the Ways and Means committee.

At this point Clarence Brown, of Manchester, O., walked out.

"What's the use of staying," he remarked, "when I can read it all in Drew Pearson's column later?"

School System Needs Revamping, Babson Declares

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 20—As another school year opens, I want to again go on record that the present public school system is largely obsolete and inefficient. School superintendents and some teachers see the handwriting on the wall; but those who really control the situation appear blind to what is going on.

Some years ago, a few farseeing educational leaders were convinced that moving pictures had great possibilities in connection with the public schools. They thereupon urged certain concerns to make "educational" films. These concerns have done a good job and these films are being used today successfully in many schools and colleges. They, however, teach only history, science and certain other factual subjects, without developing the character of the child.

By "character" I mean his purposes, habits, and desires. As every modern psychologist knows—character is the big thing for which the public schools should aim. Yet, we turn this very technical task over to alchemists, storekeepers and politicians to solve. Top-notch educational experts tell me that the answer lies with properly directed emotional visual education.

Study Your Own Children

I have a bunch of grandchildren. Incidentally, I believe that good healthy grandchildren, who love to work and have been taught to pray, are the best inflation hedges which any man can have. Naturally, I want them "educated" in addition. But here is what troubles me:—One of my grandchildren is a girl 12 years old. She has little interest in school work except the games which she is taught to play. Yet, at home she is "glued," most of the time, to the radio. Like most other kids, is crazy to go to the movies. She knows the names of all the leading movie and broadcasting actors. She especially likes the movie and radio dramas. Upon checking with neighborhood parents, I find that their children measure up about the same.

Schools Must Go Drama

Some old maids reading this column will say that young children should not be allowed to go to the movies or listen to these radio "bedtime" features. Others blame the inefficiency of the public schools on the home and pass the buck back to the parents. What is the answer? Should the children be forbidden to listen to these radio dramas and attend the run of movies or shall the public school adopt more visual emotional education while still retaining discipline?

Frankly, our present educational system must be amended. The school committees, backed up by the publishers of textbooks, are forcing children to drive "horse and buggies" in an automobile and airplane era. Unless the public schools are to turn the real education of our children over to the commercial movie and broadcasting companies, then we must install more visual education and drama. Otherwise, the public schools will gradually become a waste of time and money.

What Will Television Do?

All of the above is true without consideration of what will happen to our children when television gets into every home. Considering the present influence on the child's character of going to the movies only once or twice a week, what will happen when television operates in all homes all of every evening? Really the situation is very serious.

I am making no appeal for the movies, or radio. I sometimes wish neither had ever been invented. Moreover, I am much opposed to "babysitting" or "amusing" children. Schools should not engage in any appeasement program. I even believe that the bamboo stick and black walnut ruler should be restored as a part of the public school system. My appeal is merely to the first purpose of the schools, after teaching the "3 R's" should be to awaken children intellectually and spiritually. The best way to accomplish this may be to scrap much of the present school system and institute more carefully selected, both factual and emotional, visual education.

Occupation Policy By MacArthur Is Viewed As Wise

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—A wholly unnecessary controversy has arisen between Gen. MacArthur and the department of State with reference to the size of the American army that shall continue to occupy Japan.

Gen. MacArthur knows better than anybody in Washington how effectively the occupation is proceeding and how many troops he will need to maintain order and enforce our program. It is amazing to find the department of State questioning the military judgment of the Allied commander-in-chief and it is even more surprising that Under Secretary Acheson should have felt called upon to attempt publicly to rebuke Gen. MacArthur in a statement which says:

"The important thing is that the policy in regard to Japan is the same policy which has always been held by this government and is still held so far as I know — and I think I know."

Gen. MacArthur made it quite plain in his original statement that he was not dealing with questions of high policy toward Japan but solely with the size of the occupation armies needed to enforce the terms of surrender. He is on the ground. He knows how the Japanese army is being disarmed. He knows what weapons will be confiscated and he knows that the United States Navy, with the most powerful carrier task forces in the world, is patrolling the waters close to Japan and can send 1,500 planes with bombs into the air at any moment.

Just why then is Washington and especially the State department surprised at the comment that 200,000 men are enough for ground forces? It may be that the department of State is still living in the past—in the days before the atomic bomb, in the days when the diplomacy of our country was conducted in secrecy so that a crisis was permitted to develop in 1941 before either the army or navy was prepared. It may be also that there is some concealed policy which has not yet been revealed to the public and which involves maintaining a large standing army in peacetime to carry on a kind of threatening program not merely toward our recent enemies but possibly against future enemies from among our allies. If the department of State has any such hidden program, Congress will in due time ferret it out.

But apart from the question of what the department of State is planning in the realm of secret diplomacy, the fact remains that the Japanese people have accepted surrender in a docile manner, that their authorities have co-operated, and that the disarming and capitulation have been carried on with almost no disturbance and without any bloodshed.

Certainly the Japanese want to do everything in their power to persuade the Allies to evacuate their occupying armies. But if anyone thinks the continued presence of foreign troops on the soil of any country conduces to friendship and completely removes thoughts of reprisal or revenge, he is respectfully referred to the manner in which the Nazis gained political strength in Germany by constantly pointing to the occupying armies and finally by marching boldly into the Rhineland.

Democratic Movement Deterred

It may be questioned whether the much-talked-of democratic movement in Japan will be encouraged or whether any liberal movement can make real headway in that country if the reactionaries inside Japan can rally patriotic sentiment because of foreign pressure and foreign coercion in the form of occupying armies.

The United States and its allies can disarm Japan and withdraw the occupying armies in a year and gain more in an educational sense toward implanting the American viewpoint on atrocities and the Pearl Harbor attack than they can do by arousing new causes of resentment through a prolonged occupation. Gen. MacArthur has sensed the realities of the situation and is saying we can maintain order and hold Japan from rising against us with an army of only 200,000 men. It may be astonishing to the old-school diplomats and to some military people who are looking for excuses to delay demobilization, but a nation which uses atomic bombs doesn't need much of an occupying army. Japan remembers Nagasaki and Hiroshima all too vividly to try any mischief for a long time to come.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Opened my radio program from the other night and I must say it's the greatest state in the union. I must say it because I may want to go back there some day. And are they rich! What I seemed to see third woman owned an oil well. Unfortunately I kept meeting the first two. Texas is so big that the circus doesn't like to play the state. Their cows are so big they make the elephants seem anti-climatic.

Fort Worth and Dallas are supposed to be sister cities. They act like two maiden aunts alone with a marine. But Fort Worth gets even. Whenever the yehave a big storm, their papers carry big headlines that read, "Hurricanes 30 miles west of Dallas." I casually asked police chief if Fort Worth didn't have one thing better than Dallas. He said, "oh, yes, they have bigger thieves."

And they twist everything until it has a Texas background. I passed one theatre and they had a big sign up in lights. "John Hodiak in 'A Bell for the Alamo.'"

But they really feel self-sufficient. I asked one rancher from down on the Rio Grande how the Good Neighbor policy was coming along. He said, "Oh, we get long fine with the Mexicans, it's them furriers up north that cause all the trouble."

No. 18848 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The bill of complaint states that the parties were married on the 13th day of November, 1922, in Cumberland, Maryland; that no children were born of said marriage; that the defendant without just cause or reason deserted and abandoned the plaintiff on the 15th day of December, 1922, that said desertion has been continuous and uninterrupted since said date is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation. # Breakfast in Bed

MAJESTIC MEAL... Breakfast on a tray.

MRS. MORRISON'S Chocolate Pudding
You add a little sugar but you get a full quart

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor
To most women the idea of breakfast in bed spells the utmost in luxury and pleasant laziness. The lady who has breakfast in bed is thought of as a mythical creature of great wealth.
The truth is any woman who wants to have breakfast in bed should be able to do it at least once a week. Never mind if you have to set a good meal for all the rest of your family every morning. Do that, by all means. But one morning a week, after the youngsters have gone to school and husband to work, fix yourself a beautiful tray, put on your bed-jacket, and go back to bed to enjoy it.

This is one of the best ways for busy women to gain and store up energy for all their tasks. It's good for morale to pamper yourself occasionally.
Most of us who dream of having breakfast in bed look with longing at beautiful trays, set with special china or glass intended for the purpose. It isn't necessary to have such sets, however. You can make a handsome breakfast tray with things that you have in the house.
Start with a place mat and napkin of your Irish linen. A colored one, if you have it, looks festive. An embroidered one is elegant. As for the china, do you happen to own an old-fashioned covered butter dish? It makes a perfect serving piece for the substantial dish of your breakfast in bed. All else that's needed is a cup and saucer (be sure the cup is hot), a container which will allow you at least two cups of coffee or cocoa, and a butter plate for your toast or muffins. Dime store glass mustard pots or cigarette holders are fine for sugar and jam—and for the tiny bunch of flowers to add the ultimate touch to any tray.

What do you have to eat at this fine breakfast you're going to treat yourself to? Frosty cold fruit juice. Then cereal, if you've prepared some for the family. After the cereal, or instead of it, comes the egg course. Fix yours in whatever is your favorite fashion. For instance, how about putting a spot of cream into the bottom of a custard cup, breaking an egg carefully into this, seasoning lightly with salt and pepper and baking it in the oven just until it's set? It should stay hot while you carry it to the bedroom and get yourself settled to enjoy it.

Let your breakfast-in-bed day be also hot bread day for the whole family. Whip up some hot muffins. It takes very little time but you will find it's worth it. Try one of these receipts and prove it.
Bacon Muffins

3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
3 slices crisp bacon
Mix and sift dry ingredients. Crumble crisp bacon into the mixture and stir. Add milk, beaten egg and melted shortening. Mix just enough to dampen flour. Drop by spoonfuls into greased tins and bake at 400° 20-25 minutes, depending upon the size of the muffin tins.

Or in this season of plentiful potatoes, which we're asked to use up and thus avoid waste, try this one:
Potato Muffins
2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup rice potatoes
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening
Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Combine milk, beaten eggs and potatoes and add to flour mixture. Add melted shortening and stir just enough to blend. Bake in greased muffin tins at 425° 20-25 minutes.

Chinese Woman Led Guerrillas Against Japanese

By RICHARD CUSHING

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20. (AP) — One hundred miles of the China coast and many offshore islands were cleared of Japanese and patrolled mainly by seagoing junks preparatory to the expected American landing—through the efforts of a Chinese woman guerrilla leader and a former Shanghai policeman.

The identity of the woman still was a secret today but she is known familiarly as "Dragon Lady."

The man is Army Lt. Phillip Bradfield, Nashville, Tenn., who knew Chinese, having served with the Shanghai police force from 1925 to 1929.

The Dragon Lady decided seven years ago she could never live at peace with the Japanese in her native section in Chekiang province. She had no weapons but she did have strength and intelligence.

With two men she entered a Japanese town and knifed the sentries to obtain their guns. When she had a few weapons she acquired more friends who were willing to fight. Soon she had guerrillas operating on a wide scale in the Kiangnan plain.

As her strength grew her ideas grew and as the years passed she became the protector of all salt workers and fishermen in the Shanghai bay area. If they were oppressed by the Japanese they had only to send word to the Dragon Lady and she would come with her own forces.

She customarily carried pistols in the waistband of her man's uniform.

Not until the early part of this year did she meet Bradfield, of the American army, to learn how she could be of strategic value against the Japanese.

Bradfield, a wide-chested man, had been sent into the mountains of Western Chikiang to gather information.

The Dragon Lady's activities by then had become recognized by the provisional government.

She carried the rank of captain and was extremely cognizant of military problems, especially supply.

Under Bradfield's instructions, she mapped the entire area of the coast and informed him regularly of the Japanese strength and changes in positions. The Japanese couldn't make a move that Bradfield was not informed about.

—The United States Coast Guard has served in every war since 1790.

Potomac River Falls At Harpers Ferry

HARPERS FERRY, Md., Sept. 20 (AP) — The Potomac river, whose waters came within two feet of covering downtown Harpers Ferry, receded at the rate of four inches an hour today.

Two days of rain caused the river to crest at 18.5 feet late yesterday in Harpers Ferry, as a 19.6 foot high mark was recorded at Shepherdstown where the water has begun to drop.

The Shenandoah river, which joins the Potomac at Harpers Ferry, hit its peak early today and then started to decline. Tributary streams in Berkeley and Jefferson counties caused no interruption in traffic when they went over their banks but did wash out some crops.

Beau-Kidnapping Is Often Excused By Ancient Adage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Is a girl who steals another girl's sweetheart a snake? Or does that old adage, "All's fair in love and war," excuse beau larceny?

Did you happen to read an account in this column about two girls called Violet and Jonquil (not their names) who were war workers and shared a tiny apartment with the understanding that when the best boy friend of either girl called, the other was to make herself scarce?

The boy friend in question, like a collector, may have had a yen for what was scarce and difficult to acquire, for he waylaid Jonquil as she was on her way out one evening and invited her to dinner. Violet was his girl, and she was expecting him to propose that very evening. Well, Jonquil after a few heroics over what she was doing, not only went to dinner with the young man, but charmed a proposal out of him, a subsequent letter tells me, and they are to be married. Naturally, Violet declines to be a bridesmaid.

Here are some of the letters: N.B. C. writes from St. Louis: "I wouldn't say Jonquil was a snake. It just happens she appealed to the boy friend more than Violet. Maybe if the two girls had re-made their rules and allowed the other one to be present when the date arrived, there wouldn't be so much curiosity about the vanishing girl. You know the old saw: 'The grass on the other side of the fence is always greener.'"

L.M.J. writes from New York City: "Your story of Violet and Jonquil might have been my own, though I never resorted to the rule of 'coast clear' when my fiancé was about to call. My roommate managed to meet him outside, and the first thing I knew was the tearful confession they were in love. It just about wrecked my faith in human nature. But the following year I met my present husband, and like the heroine of the fairy tale, we've lived happily ever after. My date who fell for my roommate has been twice divorced. My best to Violet; she's well rid of him."

As there seems to be a good deal of beau-kidnapping these days, not only among servicemen but civilians, this column welcomes more letters on the subject.

Former French Luxury Liner Normandie Is Declared To Be Surplus

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The navy today formally declared the former French luxury liner Normandie to be surplus.

Assistant Secretary H. Struve Hensel told a news conference the vessel, now the USS Lafayette, will be turned over to the maritime commission for disposal. The ship is now berthed in Brooklyn, New York.

Hensel said he had no idea what the ultimate disposition of the ship would be.

Taken over from its French owners early in the war, the vessel caught fire and sank in the North river, New York, shortly thereafter. Subsequently raised, she was towed to her present location.

LISTEN WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson
Registered U. S. Patent Office

Ever stop to think what a different world this world would be if we treated peevish oldsters as we do onerous youngsters? Or how much happier and healthier those oldsters themselves would be?

It's a curious practice — that ancient system which hustles Junior off to the woodshed and rewards Dad with the best slice of white meat for exactly the same ructions. Personally, I could never see where in a sixty-year-old tantrum differed from a six-year-old one.

"Why," marveled I to my young self, "should it be perfectly permissible for a grownup to interrupt, contradict, meddle, fib, yell, whine, take unfair advantage and be a poor sport generally — yet absolutely outrageous for a young one?"

Was there some subtle superiority about hardened arteries, double chins, hairy warts and "bay windows" which entitled you to special rights . . . and would I know the deep, dark secret when I got that way myself?

Well, I'm that way myself now . . . or almost. I may not quite qualify for a museum piece but it's years and years since my bridgework would stand heavy traffic or anyone hollered, "Hiya, Babel!" But I'm as far as ever from the answers to this particular riddle.

Yes, my temper is still doing business at the same old stand. I still have one of those sudden dizzy spells if someone's getting the best of me in an argument. And I can pull as nice a flock of pouts as you ever saw, if I can't have my own way. But have I acquired any matured wit or wisdom to compensate for these facts? Have my noble acts or tragic sufferings entitled me to special respect and consideration? I'd give an ear to say they have! But the disgusting truth, Partner, is — they haven't.

When I bust a plate, now-adays, and a couple of blood-vessels, they call it "temperament" instead of "temper," and to refer to my "striking personality." But that's just polite camouflage. Actually, there isn't a snitch of difference between the shindigs I pull today and those I staged some forty years ago. Nor do I deserve a particle more consideration.

And these unhappy facts apply to all of us. A tantrum is a tantrum at any age — a poor sport is a poor sport whether he wears a baby's dummies or a dean's gown. Age does not alter the nature of bad manners — nor should it decrease their penalties. However, even though he may skip the woodshed — and bounce

Junior off to bed—the bad-mannered adult faces an inevitable payoff. (Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Synthetic Blood Plasma Was Used By German Army

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Germany developed a satisfactory synthetic substitute for blood plasma when malnutrition among civilians made it impossible to produce enough natural plasma for her wounded troops.

This was disclosed today in a report on wartime chemical developments in the Reich. The report was made by a group of American scientists who declared the plasma substitute played "an important role in German field hospitals."

The synthetic, called "periston," is an organic material somewhat similar to gelatin and gum acacia, both of which have been used at various times throughout the world as blood substitutes.

(The role of such substances, which produce a thick liquid when added to water, is to restore lost blood pressure and blood volume until the human body is able to manufacture its own blood.)

But both gelatin and acacia have produced dangerous side-effects in the body at times.

According to the American report, the Germans consider their new product superior to gelatin and acacia. More than 200,000 treatments were administered to members of the German army "with practically no reactions," he report said.

The Americans declared, however, that the preparation would probably not have a large postwar usefulness.

The information was obtained recently by representatives of the Technical Industrial Intelligence committee which has probed all phases of Germany's war secrets.

Gasoline Distribution Restrictions Will End

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. (AP)—Controls over distribution of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oils in the east coast area will end September 30.

The Petroleum Administration for War announcement said enough ocean-going tankers will be available then, together with pipeline deliveries, to provide enough petroleum.

American technicians were sent to Germany after V-E day to find inventions that would aid in the war against Japan.

Wage increases more than doubled the cost of British coal output during the war.

Mayor's Son Placed On Inactive Reserve

Flight Officer Thomas R. Post, son of Mayor and Mrs. Thomas S. Post, 512 Louisiana avenue, a glider pilot with sixteen months of overseas combat duty, was separated from active service Tuesday at Fort George G. Meade and placed in inactive reserve.

Flight Officer Post participated in the invasion of Southern France last August and saw action in the campaigns at Cherbourg, Holland, Belgium and the Rhine crossing into Germany.

His wife, First Lt. Gertrude Green Post, army nurse corps, whom he married last April 20 in England, was stationed at a base hospital near London.

Flight Officer Post flew his first combat mission as a glider pilot of the First airborne army in the invasion of Holland.

Air Force Generals Say B-29 Successor Could Bomb Europe from U. S., Return

By JAMES J. STREIB
Associated Press Aviation Editor
WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Three air force generals who flew non-stop from Japan to Chicago said today that the successor to the B-29—a plane being built but not yet officially announced—could bomb Europe from the United States and return to base.

Even the "already obsolescent" B-29 could fly to Europe and back, said Brig. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, commanding one of the three Superforts which landed short of their Washington goal yesterday.

However, Lt. Gen. Barney M. Giles, deputy commander of American air forces in the Pacific, said that the Superfort would not be a practical bomber for use at that range.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, chief of staff of strategic air forces in the Pacific, said that using the B-29s maximum takeoff gross weight of 140,000 pounds, each of the three

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Most GIs are passing up a final opportunity for army chow when they are discharged, Congress was told today during a discussion of demobilization.

Explaining the step-by-step procedure at separation centers, Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Henry said that after the handshaking and final proceeding, a discharged GI is invited to have lunch on the army.

planes could have carried 3,000 pounds of bombs on the 6,100-mile flight. The planes took off from Itazutani airport near the capital of Hokkaido, with a gross weight of 137,000 pounds, which included 60,000 pounds of fuel.

Asked what had been learned from the long hop, Gen. Giles said:

Tent and Canvas Firm's Contracts With Government Are Terminated

Night Shift Workers Are Sent Home; Plant Manager Is Not Optimistic about Future Operation

All government contracts of the State Tent and Canvas Company, Foster building, were suddenly terminated yesterday and night shift workers were sent home after reporting for work. A total of 170 employees are affected.

"This cuts our feet right out from under us," B. T. Phillips, plant manager, said last night in commenting on the immediate cessation of work on all government contracts. The plant had been in operation for nine months.

Work Stops Immediately

"All work will stop immediately," Phillips said. He reported that the company now has between fifty and 100 tents in process and approximately 350,000 yards of government-furnished materials on hand.

Phillips declined to say whether the termination of the government contract meant the end for the company but did say that "This, of course, will drastically affect us as far as any future operations are concerned."

Referring to any possibility of reverting to civilian production, Phillips said that production costs were running too high and that in private competition the production costs are even higher. He was not optimistic about the future of the plant. Phillips stated that he was not certain that the company could compete with the market in private competition.

No Definite Decision

During the war, the company employed a total of 200 workers but the total has been cut to 170 since that time.

J. Sims Murray, vice president of the company, said that no definite decision had been made regarding the future of the company.

HOME FROM EUROPE—Lt. Col. Randolph Millholland arrived in Boston, Mass., yesterday after serving in the European theater of operations since October, 1942. He telephoned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Millholland, 218 Washington street, and reported he was on his way to Fort George G. Meade and expects to be home in a few days for a thirty-day leave. In active combat since a few days after D-day, Lt. Col. Millholland was in action through France, Belgium and Germany.

Yule Decoration Program in City To Be Broadened

A broad program of Christmas decorations designed to stimulate interest in Cumberland as a center throughout the tri-state area will be undertaken by the mercantile bureau of the chamber of commerce.

This was disclosed at a meeting of the chamber's board of directors last night.

The decorations will be provided by the mercantile bureau of the chamber, and C. William Teubner has been appointed head of the committee to arrange for them.

A budget committee likewise was appointed to consider methods of securing funds for the program.

For the past several years, Christmas decorations in Cumberland have been kept to a minimum because of wartime restrictions.

Authorize New Committee

Following a report on activities of the committee arranging for the Conservation forum to be held here November 3, the chamber directors authorized appointment of a committee for agriculture and conservation in Western Maryland.

The drilling program in the exploration of coal seams in the county is proceeding satisfactorily, according to a report of the industrial committee. Twelve holes have been completed to date with depths ranging from 574 to 1,215 feet. A total of 10,387 feet has been drilled between Borden Shaft and Westport. Holes still are to be bored between Borden Shaft and Barrelville.

A report on the Allegheny Tool and Die Company also was submitted by the industrial committee. The company, a local organization operated by four men, began operations last month in the NYA building on West Side. Work done so far has largely been for the Allegheny Ballistics Laboratory but plans are being made to increase the scope of operations.

Hoienicka, McKearn Commended

Inquiries from four firms relative to floor space have been received.

In line with the fire prevention week program, the chamber directors passed a motion commending Fire Chief Reid C. Hoienicka and Fire Inspector Charles McKearn for their activities leading to elimination of causes of fires in the city.

Applications for membership were received in the past month from Fort Cumberland hotel, Robert E. Larany, Jr., conservationist, and the Allegheny Tool and Die Company.

State A. F. of L. Cancels Meeting Planned Here

Labor Group Is Unable To Secure Sufficient Accommodations

The forty-first annual convention of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor has been cancelled because accommodations cannot be found for the 400 delegates expected to attend, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore last evening.

The annual convention, postponed last May because of the convention ban, was tentatively scheduled to be held in this city October 23 to 25.

Frank J. Coleman, secretary of the state organization, explained he received a letter yesterday from Cumberland advising that crowded conditions here meant postponing the meeting until November at the earliest.

Plan 1946 Meeting

That date, Coleman declared, is too close to next year's convention, scheduled for the fourth week in May, to be worthwhile.

Tentative arrangements have been made to hold the convention next May in Hagerstown, the most central point between this city, Baltimore and Washington.

Paul W. England, this city, vice president of the state A. F. of L., reported last week that local hotels had promised to reserve accommodations for only 110 of the delegates.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce reported that it was able to find accommodations for only 178 of the delegates.

Lack Hotel Space

England, who has been in charge of local arrangements for the past two conventions, reported that all of the labor representatives were anxious to have the convention here.

Coleman added that unsuccessful attempts had been made to get hotel space in Salisbury, Ocean City, Frederick and Hagerstown.

While most local people probably feel indebted to the retired missionary for providing them with a topic for light banter at the dinner table, nevertheless there are a number of people right here in Cumberland and many more nearby who have been giving the prediction serious thought.

One Cumberland woman called up the NEWS office four times last night to make inquiries. The first time, after the initial exchange of "hellos," she said "Now don't fail your chair, but is there really anything to this business about the world ending tomorrow?"

First Guess Was Wrong

Another inquiry was made as to whether the schools would be closed today.

The truth is that the Rev. Mr. Long has already proved to be a poor prognosticator. As a matter of fact, he predicted that the world would end last Friday and when it didn't unblushingly said it would be this Friday.

"Laugh and scoff if you wish," he said, disclosing that he arrived at the date by adding up a column of figures he saw in a vision seven years ago and combined his total with some assorted figures from the Bible.

Son Quits Job

Long has been fasting and praying around the clock along with about thirty followers. His son, Richard, quit his job in a market convinced that worldly toil is now unnecessary.

A local physician yesterday attributed the fact that a few people take such things seriously to "nerves." Doing a little predicting of his own, he predicted that there would be a number of incidents along this line until people get over their war jitters.

Twelve Nominated To Kiwanis Board

Twelve members were nominated to the board of directors of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at the regular weekly meeting yesterday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA.

They are Douglas R. Bowie, George L. Buchanan, Fred W. Elder, Charles F. Helmrich, George A. Lemmert, William E. London, Robert B. MacBeth, John R. Rodman, Frank A. Stein, Carl F. Schmutz, Charles J. Simpson and Grant A. Wiebel.

Four directors will be elected from the list of nominees at a meeting October 12.

John H. Brient, Dayton, O., a blind pianist, presented a musical program and lecture during the meeting. Brient gave a unique piano recital, playing with one foot and both hands, with his elbow and a hand and with his head and a hand.

He described methods of educating blind persons to lead useful lives, citing the senses of touch and hearing as valuable aids in such instruction, and naming successful mechanic engineers, contractors, chemists, teachers, lawyers and legislators who have achieved important positions despite their blindness.

P. Lee Fresh, president, presided at the meeting, which was attended by fifty-nine members and guests. George L. Buchanan, program chairman, introduced Brient.

Petroff Is Appointed To New Post by O'Connor

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 20 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Francis Petroff, adjutant general of the state, was today named by Gov. O'Connor to membership on the Unemployment Compensation Board of Maryland.

Gen. Petroff will succeed Ambrose J. Kennedy, whose resignation was announced yesterday. His term will expire in 1947.

The new appointee was made secretary of state by Gov. O'Connor on May 17, 1939, serving in that capacity until May 15, 1941, when he resigned to accept his present post as adjutant general.

Petroff is a resident of Frederick, where he practices law, and is active in county bar and veterans' circles. He is past commander of Francis Scott Key Post, American Legion; past president of the Frederick Kiwanis Club; past exalted ruler of the Frederick lodge of Elks and has held various other posts with civic and fraternal organizations.

Other members of the Unemployment Compensation board are Russell S. Davis, chairman, Cambridge, and Joseph P. McCurdy, Baltimore.

DEALERS HAVE ENOUGH FUEL FOR RESIDENTS

Local dealers report that the coal situation is not any worse than it has been, and unless there is an unusual hard winter or some unforeseen factor interferes, there will be enough fuel for the residents in this area.

It is still difficult to get a better quality coal, dealers said, but if buyers order early, they may get a superior grade.

There has been no material increase in Georges creek coal production although some former miners have been released from service since those released are not returning to their former jobs.

World Ends Today if California Minister's Prediction Comes True

News Gets Four Calls about Retired Missionary's Prognostication

If the calculations of the Rev. Charles G. Long, of Pasadena, Calif., are correct, some pretty drastic things will occur in Cumberland sometime today. The Rev. Mr. Long predicted that the world will end.

While most local people probably feel indebted to the retired missionary for providing them with a topic for light banter at the dinner table, nevertheless there are a number of people right here in Cumberland and many more nearby who have been giving the prediction serious thought.

Body of Hunter Exhumed; Bullet Found in Brain

Investigation into Death of Glenn Merrbaugh, Moscow, Reopened

The body of Glenn Frederick Merrbaugh, 14, Moscow, who was found dead last Sunday morning in the woods about a half mile above the Moscow road, was exhumed yesterday morning from the Moscow cemetery after a bullet hole was discovered in the hunting cap the youth was wearing when he met his death.

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, ordered the exhumation when discovery of the bullet hole in the cap was reported to him Wednesday by Henry H. Burgess, Washington, D. C., uncle of the youth, who had come to Moscow to attend funeral services for his nephew.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, who performed an autopsy after the exhumation, reported that a bullet, either from a .22 or .25 caliber rifle, was found embedded in the boy's brain. Dr. Corson said the bullet entered the frontal bone above the eyes. Harris pointed out that the hunting cap had been pierced at the edge of the visor.

Saturated with Blood

Harris said the cap was saturated with blood, adding that the hole was barely noticeable as it was a thick seam of the hat. Members of the youth's family said they were positive the hole was not there when the youth went hunting last Saturday. The cap and clothing of the boy had been sent to his home from Bost's funeral home, Westernport, after funeral services were held Tuesday.

When the boy's body was found about 10 a. m. Sunday, an examination by Dr. Corson revealed that the frontal bone in the head had been fractured and that there were numerous contusions and a large amount of clotted blood on the front of the youth's head. The bullet hole was not discovered at that time.

When the body was found by John O. Metz and John Broadwater, both of Moscow, members of a searching party of 100 persons, it was lying near a jagged rock which was encrusted with blood. Dr. Corson reported that a considerable part of the brain was damaged, and it was believed the youth fell, and died as a result of the fracture of the frontal bone.

The youth had fallen down a hillside and the barrel of his 12-gauge shotgun was struck in the ground. It had not been discharged, and two other youths with Merrbaugh were not carrying rifles on the day of the hunting trip, authorities reported.

No Shot Heard

Harris said yesterday that John Beeman, who lives on a farm 500 yards away from the spot where the youth's body was found, said he and his family returned from Frostburg about 6:30 p. m. Saturday, but that they had not heard a shot that evening.

Police said that during the hunting season the sound of a shot would not be apt to attract attention.

Dr. Corson said after performing the autopsy yesterday that the youth probably remained alive for "some time" after the bullet entered his head. When Dr. Corson examined the body about noon Sunday, he said the youth had been dead for at least eight or ten hours.

Harris urged anyone who has any information regarding the case to contact him as soon as possible. The investigation is continuing, but it is assumed that the boy was killed by a "stray bullet" from the gun of some other hunter who had been in the vicinity. Police said the boy had no known enemies.

Full Operation Will Be Resumed Today At Luke Paper Mill

Investigation into Death of Glenn Merrbaugh, Moscow, Reopened

Full operation will be resumed today at the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, a company spokesman reported last evening.

Practically all workers scheduled to report did so yesterday to clean and place into operation machinery which laid idle during the thirteen-day strike called by Local 676, PWOC, September 6.

Company officials said the company considered the contract signed as of August 20 and effective until August 20, 1946, as completed at the Luke plant with the union's acceptance of the wage increase clause.

Similar action is expected over the weekend at the Williamsburg, Pa., and Covington, Va., mills covered by the contract according to Harry Sayre, international PWOC secretary-treasurer.

McCormick Will Appoint New OPA Panel Here Soon

A community service panel comprising ten or twelve residents of Allegheny county will be appointed by Leo H. McCormick, state OPA director, within two weeks, it was announced yesterday by officials of the local War Price and Rationing Board.

Those appointed to the panel will promote a program to keep county residents informed of the need to maintain price and rent controls despite the end of the war, in order to avoid inflation, according to Mrs. L. P. Naylor, Baltimore, community services officer for the state OPA office.

Mrs. Naylor came here Wednesday to confer with local OPA officials regarding the reaction of a community service panel appointed here in August, 1944. The panel included Miss Margaret Coulehan, former staff member of Station WTBO; Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupils personnel for the county board of education; and T. Donald Shires, a reporter for the Cumberland Evening Times.

Nominees Will Be Listed

Mrs. Naylor said that a list of nominees proposed by local officials for the new panel will be prepared and sent to McCormick for approval as soon as possible.

It was stated that Mrs. Aurelia Becker, president and general manager of WTBO, will co-operate with the panel by giving radio time for spot announcements regarding the program to continue OPA controls.

Plans are being made to hold a meeting Wednesday, October 3, for those appointed to the panel. At that time Mrs. Naylor will be invited to come here and explain the proposed program to them in more detail.

One of the first duties of panel members will be to address various county organizations, including women's clubs and business groups, explaining the object of the program and asking for support in maintaining existing OPA controls until the danger of inflation is past, Mrs. Naylor said.

First Project Cited

Rationing board officials said yesterday that the first project which will be undertaken by the panel will be the distribution of "shopping lists" to counter housewives through the co-operation of schools and business organizations.

Housewives will be asked to note on the lists the food items they purchased each week, with brand names, weight or size of the product, the price paid, and the ceiling price.
